Karesh, William B. Appointment at the Ends of the World: Memoirs of a wildlife veterinarian. New York: Warner Books, 1999. 376 pgs.

From saving the life of a wounded okapi in Zaire to collecting DNA samples from endangered orangutans in Borneo, Dr. William Karesh cares for and protects animals in some of the most exotic and remote corners of the world. Now, in a book that is part travelogue, part conservation primer, and all adventure thriller, this world-renowned veterinarian shares some of his most fascinating - and dangerous - encounters in the wild..

Kendall, Grant. The Animals in My Life: Stories of a country vet. New York: Howell Book House, 1996. 211 pgs. ISBN: 9780876057469

Grant Kendall is a doctor of veterinary medicine. His love of horses brought him to central Kentucky, where there are plenty of horses to keep him busy and where he still lives. Over the years his articles on a variety of subjects-animals, computers, humor and baseball have appeared in such publications as The Chronicle of the Horse.

Kendall, Grant. More Animals in My Life: Stories of a country vet. New York: Howell Book House, 1998. 193 pgs. ISBN: 9780876051689

Grant Kendall is a doctor of veterinary medicine. His love of horses brought him to central Kentucky, where there are plenty of horses to keep him busy and where he still lives. Because Kendall is a large animal vet specializing in horses, some of his most memorable stories are about them.

"John Smith's diaries and letters home tell a remarkable story, tracing the experiences of a young vet in a tiny, close-knit colonial society, and explaining the emotional pressures of trekking for weeks on end, alone with several scores of carriers, through bush and veldt. His close-quarter observations of Africans, early this century, is an important balancing contribution to our understanding of colonial history....
